economic principle which saves the individual from bankruptey, though it applies m well to our city. The problem works about thus: We produce the raw material in great abundance: it is sold on our streets to the broker who consigns it to the manufacturer at Jennie Dutton, of Newton, a sister of Mr. a profit, which we will call No. 1; it is car- Lawson, who attended the funeral of the and converted into the article in daily use, respective homes vesterday. yielding to the manufacturer profit No. 2; it is sold at wholesale rates to the jobber, who, in turn, and at great expense, sends his agents to our dealers for their orders. making profit No. 3; here we find it sblaning, new, convenient and savory ready for use yielding to our merchants profit No. 4. then taking into account the cost of long transportation to and from the mills, equal, perhaps, to profits No. 5 and 6, it is no matter of surprise that perk is so much higher than hog, or hat the cost of the garment is so out of proortion to-that of the fleece.

Had we the organized capital and the machinery to accomplish these things, might we not save, at least, a large per cent. of this outlay. It would reverse the order by not only saving these profits, but by the investment and accumulation of large additional capital, by the employment of hun-dreds of skilled mechanics, adding largely to our population and to the business of our merchants and tradesmen, and bringing to Wichita the proceeds of a business conducted by others at her expense.

But who is to suggest the method, and how to it to be accomplished. Here is the point to be guarded. Clearly we can but little in the way of building up these establishments without the aid of writing of personal letters, to a proper and sberniuse of printers' ink; deal in facts officers were elected for the ensuing term: and noting more, and extend to all visitors in this interest a cordial welcome.
